Eurocontrol Technics makes 2014 PROFIT 500 ranking

Eurocontrol Technics Group (CVE:EZO), a Canadian company specializing in energy security, authentication, verification and certification technologies, said Thursday that both Canadian Business and PROFIT publications have ranked it number 337 on the 26th annual PROFIT 500, a ranking of Canada's fastest growing companies.

The ranking will be published in the July issue of Canadian Business, and online at PROFITguide.com. The PROFIT 500 ranks Canadian businesses according to their revenue growth over five years.

This is indeed Eurocontrol's forte, with the company more than doubling revenue in the past five years, rising 144%. "We are very pleased to be acknowledged by the PROFIT 500 list of Canada's Fastest-Growing Companies for the first time and look forward to being included on the list in future years as we continue to grow our business internationally," said chairman and chief executive of Eurocontrol, Bruce Rowlands.

Eurocontrol has three wholly owned Israeli subsidiaries, two of which are already generating revenue, with the company forecasting approximately $8 million in revenue this year just based on existing contracts alone. It also has around $2 million in cash, but its market cap is just under $10 million, making the company substantially undervalued, according to Rowlands.

The CEO, which is leading an effort to unlock the existing value in the business, will be presenting at our Proactive Investors forums in Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver next week, where investors will be able to hear first hand what this exciting company with Israeli-invented technology has to offer.

The company's three subsidiaries all relate to one another, with all three offering authentication, verification and certification technologies. The company's primary business is Global Fluids International (GFI), which has a four-part proprietary fuel marking system known as Petromark -- for governments and oil companies looking to counteract the illicit trade of hydrocarbons.

The proprietary technology identifies fuel that has been tampered with, for example diluted with lower grade fuel, propane, water or even urine --- something that is quite common in developing nations, leading to damaged engine parts, illegal imports and significant government losses in tax revenue.

The process works with a unique marker that cannot be copied or removed, which is then injected at the terminal or pipeline. This is followed up with a mobile detection analyzer, as well as with the automatic transmission of results in real time to a central monitoring and control centre. The technology is the only one in the world that has an ISO 17025 accreditation, meaning it is of sufficient forensic quality to be admissible into a court of law for evidence.

Eurocontrol also has two other Israeli subsidiaries: Xenemetrix, which is the manufacturer of the analyzers Eurocontrol uses in GFI's Petromark system, and XwinSys, a start-up acquired in May 2012 whose goal is to produce a standalone verification system for semiconductors.

The business seems to only just be getting started, with fuel adulteration a timely and growing issue in emerging countries. Annual global losses from the illicit trade of fuels is estimated at over US$200 billion per year.
